With over twenty years of classroom experience and numerous local, state, and national excellence in teaching awards to his credit, it is Mr. Perricone's thesis that one's philosophy of life is intimately tied to one's identity, and that it is this philosophical identity (conscious or otherwise) that ultimately dictates one's professional work style, and that also distinguishes those who find joy and passion in their work from those who find drudgery. In his 1 hour lecture/workshop entitled Developing a Philosophical Identity in the Workplace, he will compellingly invite his audience to participate in a series of introspective exercises that are designed to help them better know themselves and the professional path upon which they have embarked. For anyone serious about their profession, this is an experience not to be missed.
